Cannot Escape "Indirect Trial."

But the scores of lawyers who are scussing the case say that another big stone wall prevents anything like escape from a trial of the charges against the governor, even if he per-sonally escapes the docket. This is their line of thought:

"Suppose the governor succeeds in some way in avoiding trial. The conspiracy indictment which covers all three defendants—Gov. Small, Lieut, Gov. Merchandise Manager Mail Order-Women's Wear

Mail Order—Women's Wear

One of the really big concerns of the country wants a man of unquestioned ability, experience and integrity.

Mere buying knowledge is not enough. He must know merchandising in this field from the ground up. He must keep uppermost at all times the cardinal principle of buying TO SELL.

So he will naturally know styles and have the facilities to trace fashion tendencies in advance. He will be a quick thinker and probably somewhat of a salesman. He will be familiar with catalog work, catalog building and sound principles of catalog display and salesmanship. Particularly he must have the mail order viewpoint. He will deal in big figures, big quantities, big orders, and in his department be supreme. He must be, therefore, a big man in every way. A disposition to co-operate and work with associates is essential. We want, above all else, a downright human being who knows his own work so thoroughly that he will arouse the utmost confidence and enthusiasm in whatever he does, and who is big enough to respect this same ability in others.

This is a big position immediately, with a big successful concern. The right man can quickly make it a whole lot bigger.

Tell all about yourself in your first letter. Go thoroughly into all details of your experience and training. Your confidence will be respected.

The matter of salary will be adjusted satisfactorily to the man who can fill the position.

Brown is gone, and many men in the trade are wondering who is going to get Brown's job.

There has been considerable speculation about this. Brown's job was reputed to be a good job. Brown's former employers, wise, grey-eyed men, have had to sit still and repress amazement as they listened to bright, ambitious young men and dignified old ones seriously apply for Brown's job.

Brown had a big chair and a wide, flat-topped desk covered with a sheet of glass. Under the glass was a map of the United States. Brown had a salary of thirty thousand dollars a year. And twice a year Brown made a "trip to the coast" and called on every one of the firm's dis-

He never tried to sell anything. Brown wasn't exactly in the sales department. He visited with the distributors, called on a few dealers, once in a while made a little talk to a bunch of salesmen. Back at the office he answered most of the important complaints, although Brown's job wasn't to handle complaints. Brown wasn't in the credit department either, but vital questions of credit usually got to Brown, somehow or other, and Brown would smoke and talk and tell a joke, and untwist his telephone cord and tell the credit manager what to do. Whenever Mr. Wythe, the impulsive little president, working like a beaver, would pick up a bunch of papers and peer into a particularly troublesome and messy subject, he had a way of saying, "What does Brown say? the hell does Brown say?-Well,

At the same time the Sweet bill is thus being held up again, after being delayed for more than five weeks in the senate. President Harding in conference with senatorial leaders outlines a list of four chief measures calling for immediate action. These measures do not include the Sweet bill. Railoads, agriculture, tariff and taxes apparently are considered more important than the lives and comfort of men without whose efforts and sacrifices none of these things would exist in their normal state in this country today.

The President, it will be remembered, when he ade the speech which killed the adjusted compensation bill because of its potential danger to he did to kill the bonus bill it would appear that he might exert an equal effort with the house to obtain agreement on the relief bill. There are no finer examples of devoted public service than are found in our city fire department. But public appreciation does not express itself as effectively as it might. Is any one else doing what Mrs. Emily Morton who wrote us

Mrs. Morton, who wrote us this letter, at first failed to soak her clothes according to the directions below. Now that she is soaking them she gets the same wonderful results with Rinso as her neighbors do.

Among the thousands of enthusiastic letters we have received about Rinso there have been a few like Mrs. Morton's raising some question about its use.

We are giving on this page all the questions we have received and our answers. If any other woman has any question, won't she write us?

Should I dissolve Rinso in boiling water first?

Question: "Should I dissolve Rinso in boiling water first or pour it right into the tub from the package?"

Answer: You will get a much richer, soapier suds if you dissolve Rinso in boiling water, according to the directions below, before pouring it into your tub.

How long should I soak colored clothes?

Question: "How long should I soak colored clothes in Answer: Colored clothes should never be soaked, even in clear water, for longer than half an hour. Soak your colored things in Rinso suds for only a half hour.

Is any other soap needed with Rinso?

Question: "Do I have to use any other soap when I use Rinso?"

Answer: No. Soak the clothes with Rinso as directed below and the dirt will all come out and leave the clothes spotlessly clean. No other soap is needed.

Should I use Rinso on silks?

Question: "I have been using Rinso for over a year for all my regular wash. I would never have believed it possible to get clothes clean without rubbing. I have never used it on my husband's silk shirts or on my own silk things. Would it be all right?"

Answer: No, Rinso is made especially for the regular family wash. Silks, woolens, and the very fine sheer fabrics should be washed in Lux.

Does hard water make any difference?

Question: "I have used Rinso for nearly a month. It makes the work easier but I still have to rub quite a little. I use it according to directions—half a package to a tub of clothes. The water is very hard here. Do you suppose that has anything to do with it?"

Answer: Yes, when the water is hard, a larger amount of Rinso must be used to get a good, rich, soapy suda. Try using f or even a full package to a tub. It is always better to use too much than too little.

When I first started to use Rinso I didn't

Can I use Rinso in my washing machine?

Question: "I have a washing machine. Can I use Rinso in it?"

Answer: Rinso is the ideal soap product for washing machines.

With it you don't have to do any rubbing—not even the most badly soiled spots. Follow the regular directions given below. Soak the clothes. Then, before operating the machine, add a fresh Rinso solution, using the same amount of Rinso as you used for soaking. No other soap is needed when Rinso is used.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux, the largest soap makers in the world. It loosens and dissolves the dirt from even the heaviest pieces of the weekly wash, without injury to a single fabric.

DOWNEY ANNOUNCED LEONARD-KANSAS TO AS CHAMP BY COMISH: HERE ARE STATEMENTS

CLEVELAND, 0., July 27.—[Special.]—Following are statements on the outcome of the Johnny Wilson-Bryan Downey fight for the world's middleweight championship fight here tonight:

BY J. B. WILBERDING.

[Chairman Cleveland Boxing Commission The members of the Cleveland boxing commission have ruled that Bryan Downey won by a knockout, and is the world's middleweight champion. It is believed the country at large will accept the commission's verdict. The revised times of the official timekeeper show that Wilson twice was down longer than the regulation ten seconds while Referee Gardner was counting ten in the seventh round. If any foul was committed. it was by Wilson's manager jumping into the ring while the count was going

BY JAMES GARDNER. (Referee of the fight.)

I awarded the secision to Jonnny Wilson on a foul, when Downey hit him at the count of seven while he was rising in the seventh round.

BY JIMMY DUNN. (Manager of Dawney.)

Bryan Downey claims the championship of the world and will defend it at 158 pounds. Downey weighed in at 155 pounds today, bein, weighed before a member of the boxus commission, and Wilson looked to weigh 170 pounds,

SERVICE runs all the way through the Illinois Automobile Club. The Inter-Insurance exchange which saves motorists about half the usual conference premium rates was organized to serve the motorist at cost. Strong, well financed, ably conducted insurance has made this a popular department of our club. Hundreds of letters have poured into this club thanking its insurance department for its prompt adjustment of claims.

Chirago motorists were recently given a concrete example of what prompt service to automobile owners means as applied to an automobile club. They saw the Illinois Automobile Club halt the arrest of motorists by a court writ of injunction, restraining the city from enforcing the police card of identification. It is estimated that this move has saved motorists $4,000,000 in fees and lost time, preventing many unplease

Sour Milk Spoon Bread.

Sour milk is a not infrequent sun mer supply in most of our homes, and perhaps there is no better and quicker way of utilizing it than in making an all corn meal spoon bread with it. We can get just as fine a custard crust, on the bottom of the bread at least, as with sweet milk, provided we pour the batter into a well greased and sizzling hot earthen or glass baking dish. The left over part of a good spoon bread is excellent heated up and

The Mexico of today was born without a memory. The new era has canceled the law of vested right. The millions have at last overtaken the thousands. An eager Nation is measuring off centuries in two, three or five-year lengths. The present generation—from the Republic's President to the industrious peon—are so busy with today's achievements and tomorrow's projects, they have no time to remember the closed book of yesterday.

No longer are their paths of progress drenched with sobs of blood dropped from broken hearts. Mexico today is fighting for commercial and industrial development. Peering beyond the mists of doubt and piercing the walls of Time, Mexico now asks only that her sister Nations trade for gold the implements to build the Nation she has planned.

The Hundredth Anniversary of Mexico's Independence from Spain will be observed with all the fanfare and pageantry of old Mexico. America is especially invited to Mexico City during the month SEPT. 12 to OCT. 12, to be gay in celebration.

Simultaneous with the Centennial Festivities, in this dream city of Latin America, will be held the great International Commercial Exposition, staged in the magnificent National Legislative Palace, a new $5,000,000 building covering two city blocks. It will attract EVERY business man in Mexico.

There will be exhibited Farm Implements and Machinery; Tractors; Trucks; Automobiles and Accessories; Factory Equipment and Builders' Supplies; Clothing, Wearing Apparel, Boots and Shoes. These are but a few of the thousands of things more than two million merchants are waiting to buy, to supply 18,000,000 people. That this condition should exist, in this country of vast natural wealth, suggests a trade opportunity for American manufacturers that carries its own conviction.

We are reminded that heretofore nearly 80% of all goods sold in Mexico were made in Europe. TODAY EUROPE CANNOT SUPPLY THEM. Mexico now turns to the United States, opening a great market that may readily be supplied with American made goods.

Five pertinent facts should be borne in mind: First, a majority of the present generation of business men in Mexico were educated in American Universities. Second, they like American methods of doing business. Third, this great Commercial Exposition is being held in cooperation with the Government as the first step in bringing about a closer commercial relationship with the United States. Fourth, American manufacturers are being asked to exhibit their goods to business men in Mexico under one roof, to facilitate reaching ALL possible buyers at a minimum expense. Fifth, no business venture of mutual advantage was ever planned under more favorable conditions.

ACT NOW Ship your display direct to Mexico City. Materials for exhibits should arrive at the border before September 1st. They will go to Mexico City by Government special Trains free of Consular Fees, Duties and Freight—and fully insured. Naturally, booths and concessions are being sold very rapidly. It is advisedly suggested that interested manufacturers get in touch with the Executive Committee without delay.

Huge Exports Sent Out Here. A tremendous volume of goods for export passes through Chicago and goes to seaboard by lake or rail or both. The government figures, however, are so compiled that it is impossible to figure the real size of the foreign trade. Much of the foreign shipments moves to seaport on domestic bills of lading, so New York and other ocean ports are credited with the exports. For instance, the government gave the total exports of the port of Chicago for 1919 as $6,523,832; imports, $45,803,716. How misleading these figures are may be seen from the fact that in 1919 the packing house shipments for export alone came to $1,160,623,643, and in tons 4,697,955. The grain shipments of Chicago for export in 1919 alone were 285,000,000 bushels.

More Than Billion Imports. As to imports, the Association of commerce recently collected data from value of imports at $1,190,260,643. The imports have a wide range, from wax, silks and gloves to spices, chicle and silks and gloves to spices, chicle and Panama hats

Chicago exported in 1919 to thirtysix foreign countries and drew imports from twenty-seven countries. Thus as the foreign trade clearing house for mid-continent, Chicago already has a ume of export and import A seaway naturally would divert a large quantity of this to the ep water freighters and Chicago would start to loom up as an actual aport, with alluring possibilities of coming one of the greatest.

Similarly all the lake ports, Duluth, ilwaukee and the rest, would become maritime ports—the seaboard would be shoved 2,500 miles inland by the simple expedient of making the St.

Vast Tonnage in Prospect.

As to the volume of commerce af-fected by the St. Lawrence seaway ect, the economists of the Great Lakes-St Lawrence Tidewater asso lation estimate that within five years after its opening a commerce of not less than 20,000,000 tons a year from the sixteen states tributary to the inand lakes might reasonably be expected.

"The total traffic originating on class I railroads of the United States," they report, "in 1918 amounted to 2,526,531,000 tons, or twenty-four tons per capita, and on this basis the total freight of the territory affected by the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway ints to nearly 1,000,000,000 tons

"The greater proportion is purely in-ternal business not interested in reach-ing the seaboard, but practically all the foreign commerce is vitally interested, as well as the domestic com-nerce which now goes to and from Figures Bear Out Estimate. "On a basis of population, 28,000,000 one of exports and 12,000,000 tons of orts originate in the area tributary to the great lakes. The rail traffic in and out of Chicago alone amounts to nearly 200,000,000 tons without duplica-tion. In 1918 six of the principal eastern trunk lines carried 561,883,000 tons. The traffic moving to and from points on or near the Atlantic seaboard is on or near the Atlantic seaboard is estimated at about 250,000,000 tons, and it is from this tonnage that the coastwise traffic of the St. Lawrence seaway must be drawn. In view of the important savings in freight charges and terminal costs which the waterway will afford, it is believed that the foreign and domestic commerce. the foreign and domestic commerce of the waterway within five years after its opening should amount to not less than 20,000,000 tons per annum, with ed growth in the future."

Widespread Area to Benefit.

The tributary area benefiting from all this would embrace Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, In-diana, Iowa, the Dakotas, Montana, daho, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska Missourl, Kansas, twenty-two counties in Pennsylvania, and thirty-two counies in New York.

The sixteen midcontinent states are ot only the great producing region of raw materials, minerals, foodstuffs, meats, etc., but they contain industrial centers where the increase in manufacturing has been much greater than at the principal manufacturing centers of the Atlantic coast. World Agriculture Looks to Chicago as Farm Machine Headquarters

ROGRESS in Chicago, as in all metropolitan centers, walks hand in hand with the welfare of agriculture. When the countryside famishes for lack of facilities or equipment, or when it is "sick" with an attack of low price markets, industry languishes and the prosperity of cities is at low ebb.

In this connection, let us indicate that the history and growth of the International Harvester Company have always been part, and parcel with that of Chicago. When Chicago was ten years old, the elder Cyrus Hall McCormick, came west from Virginia and formed a partnership with Chicago's first mayor. The first McCormick plant stood just to the west of the present Municipal Pier location.

Today this city contains the great major plants and the general offices of this Company, furnishing a livelihood for the families of many thousands of employes who build the farm machines and implements that go out to fatten the yields and lessen the labors on millions of farms.

The International Harvester Exhibit in the Automotive Section of the Pageant of Progress Exposition at the Pier will endeavor to show you in limited space some of the accomplishments of the builders of this Company during the 90 years since Cyrus McCormick took the first reaper into the fields.

The International Harvester Exhibit will show you also several models of International Motor Trucks. This display will be the more interesting in view of the recent reductions in truck prices, ranging from $100 to $900 on the various models.

Visitors at the Pier are invited to use this opportunity for inspecting the lowest-priced quality trucks on the market. They are reminded that International trucks are among the very few leaders in total sales and that they have for years been in popular use in nearly 300 lines of business. The complete line-ranging from the 1,500-pound Speed Truck (electric lights and starter, 34x5 cord tires) at $1,500, to the 10,000-pound truck now selling at $3,600—is on display at the Chicago address,

THE WORLD'S BUSIEST MARKET PLACE

Yes, you said it-

You gave the order—you spoke to South Water Street as follows: "Give me today an ample supply of nice fruits, vegetables and produce or I perish."

You and several millions more of people in Chicago and elsewhere registered this demand—perhaps silently, maybe unconsciously, too—but it is just as unmistakable and emphatic as though you had proceeded in the most formal manner open to you.

And you mean it! Aye, you scarcely realize how deeply in earnest you are in that demand, for your health and happiness are in a large way dependent upon the proper execution of your order.

Nice ripe fruits and tender, crisp vegetables—all chock full of those lifegiving, life-sustaining vitamines—must be made available to you when you need them and in such quantities as you require. Um—um! Aren't they good?

And now then, multiply your standing order by several millions—nobody can say exactly how many millions—and you get a hazy outline of South Water Street's real problem.

Bless you, for half or two-thirds of your breakfast, luncheon and dinner today you may thank South Water Street. Then there is the same thing over again tomorrow, the day after and still the day after that. No end to it.

And when you increase your order for more of these dainty though substantial foodstuffs which Mother Nature has "done to a turn" just bear in mind what heroic efforts are necessary to assemble and make ready the vast quantities of these essential foods in such manner as the daily needs of yourself and others dictate!

From every section of this country and from many foreign lands these vast cargoes of Fruits and Vegetables are coming every day in the year. You see only a small portion of what is handled in the local market. And yet the immense total worked through the entire city—that is, unloaded for local consumption, itself an unbelievable mass—is a still smaller portion of the tremendous bulk which Chicago dealers distribute to other smaller markets all over the country, for the strategic location of Chicago makes it the greatest wholesale and jobbing market for Fruits and Produce on the continent. Indeed, there are a number of local wholesale distributors of these products whose business is almost entirely in outside markets—quite a number of them averaging well up into thousands of carloads annually. Tens of thousands of these shipments do not even move through the Chicago gateway en route from producing sections to consuming points or jobbing centers.

Of course, most houses in South Water Street act as receivers of products direct from country producing sections, and then sell them to local jobbers or retailers. The major portion of goods thus received is consumed locally; though a good share is reshipped in small lots to outside towns by express or in mixed carloads by freight at certain seasons.

Someone has said that South Water Street defies description and analysis. This is true, for very few people comprehend all its ramifications as a commercial institution. It has so many angles—every one a variation based upon the same underlying theme.

"We feed half the continent at least half the time," said a well known distributor the other day. Think what a task and how many skilled hands and trained heads are necessary to properly execute such an undertaking!

Aside from the valuable service this trade renders in providing you and several other millions with your daily supply of delicious Fruits and Vegetables—a real human service interwoven with the highly specialized business of modern distribution—they are often called upon actually to finance the growing, harvesting, packing and shipping of crops in different sections, an operation which involves an aggregate of many millions of dollars every year.

And if you knew how sharp the competition is in buying and selling among local houses—also against distributors in other markets—you would perhaps hold a different opinion about these people who are tireless in their efforts to supply your needs—often sustaining serious losses because of crop failures, unfavorable markets, defective quality in the products, etc.

But those who really know the South Water Street trade agree that there are no harder working or more good natured business men to be found anywhere. They are usually generous to a fault and optimists always—their business makes them just that way.

Greater Chicago and the Outlying Banks

In the cities within the city these banks are centers of community life and safeguard six hundred million dollars for one million depositors

Step by step with the growth of Chicago has come the establishment of a wonderful array of outlying banks. The result of the very bigness of Chicago has brought about localized business centers.

What were once independent suburban villages were swallowed up in the magical growth of Chicago. While cemented together in a greater Chicago, old names survive and serve to perpetuate a locality feeling, with its sense of pride and loyalty.

And so today there are cities within the city, each one with community pride and consciousness. Englewood, Lake View, Logan Square, Garfield Park, Woodlawn, Hyde Park are but a few. The great arteries, West Madison Street, Halsted Street, Milwaukee Avenue, 63rd Street, Cottage Grove Avenue, Lawrence Avenue, Broadway, Roosevelt Road and North Avenue, connect these thickly populated residence and business sections.

The outlying banks hold the enormous sum of six hundred million dollars in deposits. More than a million men, women and children have accounts in them. Some of the banks have as many as 25,000 accounts, and the majority more than 10,000 each.

These financial institutions exert a tremendous influence on the business and civic life of Chicago. They are more than clearing houses of their respective community. In most cases they are the community centers as well.

On the evenings in the hours these banks open their doors to the public, hundreds of thousands of people assemble to transact their banking business.

Not only are these banks safe, convenient depositaries for the funds of the people, but they are the investment centers. The term "Bank Made Mortgages and Bonds" has come to mean sound investment for surplus funds at the highest rate of interest consistent with safety.

Any one who has not established business relations with his neighborhood bank has missed a helpful, conservative influence.

Illustrative of the great and varied growth of Chicago is the progress and development of its commercial enterprises.

These organizations have grown in proportion to the service they rendered, and the composite history of the progress of Chicago is their history, multiplied many times.

The realty firm of McKey & Poague was founded in 1890 by Charles M. Poague, a lawyer of Cincinnati, O., and William D. McKey, a wholesale tobacco merchant of Janesville, Wis. From a humble beginning at 177 La Salle Street the firm prospered by integrity and fair dealing and today it operates six successful branch offices. In 1900 McKey and Poague opened the Woodlawn Trust and Savings Bank and in 1909 founded the Washington Park National Bank.

This large and steady growth of thirty-one years has been due to business methods whose openness and fairness have inspired confidence.

The Railways and the Waterways

By C. H. MARKHAM, President Illinois Central Railroad Company

THINK it will be agreed that the question of the development of inland waterways should be considered as a part of the entire transportation problem of the United States. We need better and more adequate transportation to carry the products of our farms, forests, and mines to the places in our own country where they are to be consumed or to be used as the fuel and raw materials of manufacture. We need better and more adequate transportation for distributing the products of our manufacturing industries from the great. centers of population and industry to all parts of the country. Our people within recent years have enjoyed a great export trade. Their prosperity requires that a large part of all of this be retained; and the efficiency and adequacy of our inland transportation and our merchant marine will largely determine the amount of export business we

It is important not only that our means of transportation, inland and overseas, shall be adequate and efficient, but that all our transportation service shall be rendered as cheaply as possible. If our industries are to grow, and to compete successfully with those of other nations, we must get our raw materials and manufactured products to tidewater for delivery to an American merchant marine at a cost which will enable prices to be made for our commodities which will compare favorably with the prices charged by other nations. To do this we must make use of those instrumentalities of transportation which are in fact the most efficient and economical.

We have available three means of inland transportation—highway, railroad, and waterway. Good roads and the motor truck have begun to play an important part in transportation. For some years the railways have found it difficult, and at times impossible, to handle all the freight offered. Trucks have helped to relieve the situation by handling substantial amounts of freight in congested areas. In many cases they have hauled freight, and especially high grade freight, considerable distances. Probably, however, the future of the motor truck as a carrier of freight will be found in handling it short distances in congested areas, and in bringing it to railways or waterways from points not reached by them. Practically all the freight moving long distances will go by rail and water.

The Need for a Survey.

The public's welfare demands that transportation shall be rendered in any particular territory, or between any particular points, by that means which can render it most economically, due allowance being made for differences in the speed, regularity and other features of the service. There are many parts of the country in which water transportation cannot be provided. There are others in which it can be provided, but not under conditions that would render it desirable or even feasible to have the freight business transferred from the railways to the waterways. There are still other parts where transportation by water has such great advantages over transportation by rail that the railways stand no chance of getting any considerable part of the business.

Take, for example, the supplying of coal to the Northwest. The advantages of water transportation on the Great Lakes for bulky commodities moving in large volume are so great that the natural source of the Northwest's coal supply is the mines in the Pittsburgh district, in Ohio and in West Virginia, and the natural route for it is by rail from the mines to Lake Erie ports, and by boat to the head of the lakes. Only a small part of the coal going to the Northwest moves entirely by rail.

There are, however, many parts of the country in which it is still debatable whether, if the waterways were developed, transportation by rail or by water would have the advantage in cheapness and efficiency. I do not wish to say anything against the governmental waterway policy which has been followed in the past. There is, however, one point regarding it on which I think all will agree. This is that it has not been carried out in such a way as definitely to determine where transportation by water, and where transportation by rail, are preferable. If the nation is to continue to spend many millions of dollars upon waterway development, the greatest immediate need seems to be the formulation of a definite and constructive policy under which waterway expenditures will be concentrated where physical and commercial conditions are favorable to the development of large water borne traffic.

The development of waterways often has been advocated to regulate railway rates. Doubtless in many cases railway officers have assumed an attitude of antagonism to it because they feared the effects it would have on their earnings. Railway officers are able now to take a more detached view of this subject than in the past. One of the products of the war is a new point of view toward the railroad problem as expressed in the Transportation Act under which the roads were returned to private operation. For the first time in the history of the country there is recognition of the fact, not only by the general public but by the law regulating railways, that to take care of the country's business the railroads must be enabled to provide adequate facilities, and that to provide adequate returns,

The Transportation Act directs the Interstate Commerce Commission to so fix the rates as to enable the railroads of each group, if efficiently and economically managed, to earn a return of 51/2 to 6 per cent on their aggregate valuation. It follows that if waterways should be so developed in some parts of the country as to take freight business from certain lines of the railways, the Interstate Commerce Commission would have to make the rates high enough on the business left to yield the returns specified in the law. While, therefore, the development of waterways in certain parts of the country might make the cost of transportation lower to shippers located on the waterways, it might, because of the diversion of business from the railroads, actually make the rates of shippers located exclusively on the railways higher than they otherwise would be. However, as I have said, the government should consider the policy adopted in relation to its effects on the public as a whole, and not in relation to its effects on only part of

There Is No Competition.

You may say that the water competition would force the railways to reduce their rates, at least between points where the competition existed. I think there is a good deal of misunderstanding regarding competition between railways and waterways. My observation is that there never has been for any considerable time actual competition between them. When freight may move between certain points by either rail or water it always is but a short time until either the rail route gets it all or the water route gets it all.

Take, for example, the case I have cited of coal moving to the Northwest. The water route via the Great Lakes is better and more economical than the all-rail route. In consequence, practically all the coal is moved by water. Because of the fact that the water route is better and more economical, the railways not only do not compete, but do not provide facilities for competing. In consequence, if conditions arise which interfere with the movement of sufficient coal by water, it is practically impossible to get the coal to the Northwest. Somewhat the same situation existed before the war with respect to the movement of coal from the West Virginia mines in New England. The coastwise route from Norfolk and Newport News always had been better and cheaper than the rail route, and practically all the coal moved by rail to tidewater, and thence by water to New England. In the midst of the war many of the coastwise steamships were transferred to trans-oceanic service, and it was found almost impossible to get enough coal to New England by rail.

Take, again, the conditions that have existed between Savannah, Ga., and New York and Boston. Until the carriers by water were commandeered for war purposes the people of Savannah knew nothing about shipping by rail, either from New York and Boston to Savannah, or vice versa, any commodity that could be handled by water. You might occasionally find a large piece of machinery that could not be gotten into the hold of a vessel and that had to be handled by rail on two freight cars. I do not know of any cases of the kind, but there doubtless were some. The same general conditions exist between New York and all the South Atlantic and Gulf ports. The railroads are there and yet all the traffic moves by water. There is no real water and rail competition.

On the other hand, when the railroads have been able to provide better and cheaper service than parallel waterways there has been an irresistible tendency for the business to leave the water routes and go to the railways. It may be well, in this connection, to refer briefly to the early history of the development of some railroads, and the consequent destruction of traffic on parallel water routes. Almost all the railways built in the early history of this country were constructed to serve communities already served by water. They were built to serve these places, first, because these places had become the principal centers of population and industry, and, secondly, because transportation by rail was regarded as more speedy and efficient than by water. The railroads having been constructed, and having almost no source except places located on the waterways from which to draw business, and the total business available being insufficient for both the railways and the waterways, it was inevitable that either the railway or the waterway would survive at the expense of the other. One of the first railroads constructed in this country was the road from Charleston to Hamburg, S. C. It was built in the early thirties to enable the merchants of Charleston to share with those of Savannah the business carried on the Savannah river from Savannah. Charleston, having built a railroad to Hamburg, which is just across the river from Augusta, and which was at the fall line of the Savannah river-in other words, the highest point of navigation-Savannah was obliged, in order to compete with Charleston, to build a railroad. The citizens of Savannah organized the Central of Georgia Railroad and Banking Company and constructed a line to Augusta. Having built out into the interior they were forced, in order to get the maximum business, to build to all the other river

That was the beginning of railway development in the Southeast. These railroads having been built, and having almost no source of revenue but the business available at the river points, they had to take all the traffic they could to live and they had to make rates that would enable them to take it. They could not pick up and go somewhere else if the business proved unprofitable, like a man who owned a river steamer.

The Mississippi Delta.

Take again the development of the Mississippi Delta. When the first railroad was projected from Memphis south-the road which is now the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley-there were no levees along the Mississippi until you got down into the Southern delta, below Baton Rouge. The only towns were at certain high places along the river, including Greenville, Friars Point and Rosedale. There was no traffic except at these points or at other points in the territory where the land was high enough to prevent interference with agriculture by the river in its annual overflow. The Yazoo & Mississippi Valley, having built to Greenville and expecting to wait upon the future development of the territory, had to get all the business it could to live, and it did, as a matter of fact, take so much that it drove out the river carriers. If there had been a law preventing the construction of a railroad under conditions enabling it to take business from the water carrier on the basis of service and rates, there would not have been any railroads built, and as it was only by railroad that the interior of the Mississippi Delta could have been reached the Delta would not have been developed into the garden spot that it is today.

Our experience with competition between the Erie Canal and the railroads has been similar. In our early history the Erie Canal was a very large carrier of freight. When railways were built paralleling it they had to get all the business they could to live. They therefore rendered service and made rates which speedily took practically all the traffic from the Canal.

Climatic conditions have been among the chief reasons why the railways have taken from many waterways practically all their business. A railway can operates throughout the winter in our northern states, while the waterways are closed to navigation. The Mississippi River north of Cairo, and for some distance south, often freezes over and becomes unnavigable for two months or more. The season when navigation is closed on many other inland waterways is longer. In order that a railroad may be in a position to give the public at all times the service it needs, the railroad ought to be equipped to permit it to take care of the peak load of its traffic just as should any other public utility such as an electric light or a water plant.

It is, however, a question of public policy as to the extent to which railways should be expected to provide surplus capacity to handle traffic thrown upon them by waterways becoming temporarily unnavigable. The condition mentioned is certainly one of those influences which have been potent in enabling the railways to take the business from certain waterways. When these waterways are closed the shippers make arrangements for having their traffic handled by rail, and usually find it inexpedient to divert their business from the railways to the waterways when navigation is closed, and then divert it back again when the waterways are open.

As I have said, the transportation problem should be approached from the standpoint of the welfare of the entire public. All the people must bear in the first instance the cost of waterway development carried on by the national government. The total cost of handling traffic on canals and canalized rivers includes interest on the money invested in constructing them and the cost of maintaining them, as well as the cost of providing the boat service. Should not the users of water service be required to contribute in the form of tolls toward a return on the investment and toward the maintenance of the facilities? It seems only fair to all of the people of the country that if government money is to be used to provide facilities for the movement of traffic by water, the users of the water service should contribute toward the cost of constructing and maintaining the waterways, just as those who use transportation by rail are required to contribute toward the cost of the construction and maintenance of the railways.

Co-Ordination and Co-Operation.

Since there never is for any considerable time actual competition between water and rail carriers—as one or the other, when they are pitted against each other, always will take practically all of the business—there is evident need for comprehensive study to determine where transportation by water and where transportation by rail will be preferable. It is as questionable a policy to make expenditures on waterways where the conditions are such that they probably will never be able to take the business from the railways, as to provide a large surplus capacity on the railroads to be used only in emergencies when the waterways are closed. The object of a national policy should be not to foster competition between railways and waterways, but such development of both as will enable them to co-ordinate their facilities and work together to give every section of the country the best, most adequate and cheapest transportation service practicable.

When we find, after proper experiments have been made, that transportation by water in any part of the country is in fact more efficient and economical than by rail, the railways should not be forbidden, but encouraged, to use the waterways as auxiliaries. The railroads are already organized and engaged in the business of transportation. They have agencies and connections with other railroads throughout the country, as well as connections with steamship lines throughout the world. They therefore have facilities for gathering traffic from every direction to turn over to water carriers. It may be said that if the railways are allowed to operate boats they will drive off boat lines owned by independent companies, but the Interstate Commerce Commission has power to prevent this. It has the same authority to regulate rates applying partly by rail and partly by water as to regulate rates applying entirely by rail. It has authority to require the railways to establish reasonable through rates and to make reasonable divisions of rates with water lines. In addition, the Interstate Commerce Act provides that if a railway reduces a rate to meet water competition, it shall not be allowed later to advance it merely because the water competition has been destroyed. With all these safeguards there does not seem any good reason to fear that if the railways were allowed to own and operate boat lines there would be any serious danger that they would drive out independent lines. In fact, boat lines owned by railways did, for years, operate side by side with boat lines owned by independent companies on the Great Lakes. When legislation forced the railways to cease operating boats on the Great Lakes it impaired the service rendered the shippers without benefiting the independent boat lines. As long as the Interstate Commerce Commission has such great authority in respect to rates and general transportation practices, it ought to be competent to determine the conditions under which the railroads could be permitted to use the waterwa

The officers of the railroad and the water lines, in co-operation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, should be able to determine whether it would be more economical and beneficial to the country for certain traffic to be handled by rail or by water. The argument often is made in favor of waterway development that it would relieve railways of their bulky, low grade traffic, which, it is contended, is handled at a loss. Many persons even use the word "co-operation" as if it means that the railroads voluntarily should turn over part of their business to the waterways, and especially this low grade traffic, such as lumber, grain and coal. The fact is that if any large railroad system were relieved of all of its low grade tonnage the returns from its remaining business would not permit its continuing operation.

It is the low grade business which can be handled in large trainloads at slow speeds, and at a cost much less than that of handling high grade traffic; and because this low grade traffic can be handled at low cost it is often the most profitable part of a railroad's business. Proper development of waterways and coordination with the railways would result, as I have tried to point out, not merely in the transfer of part of the business of the railroads to parallel waterways, but in the development of waterways and railways as parts of a single transportation system, each handling the business in those places where it could do it most efficiently and economically.

Mistakes Should Not Recur.

A comprehensive study of the development and use of waterways and railways not as competitive, but as co-ordinate and complementary parts of a single transportation system, would prevent in future many mistakes which have been made in the past. If the same company owned both a rail and a water line there would not be competition between them which would be carried on until one or the other was driven out. The railways would be able to develop the service of its boat line to whatever extent experience might show was necessary to help its railway lines carry business in seasons of heavy traffic, without developing either rail or water facilities to such an extent as to result in large economic waste. Of course, where railways own boat lines they are more likely to use them as connections and feeders for bringing to their rail lines traffic that they might otherwise be unable to get, than in rendering water service which would merely parallel and duplicate their rail service.

I am unable to see any difference in principle between railroads being permitted to own and operate boats upon inland waterways and their being permitted to own and operate motor trucks upon highways or streets. There are conditions in our large centers of population and industry owing to which it may be found more economical and efficient for the railways to own and use trucks to pick up and deliver freight to yards at outlying points than to continue the practice of loading merchandise at large central warehouses and switching the cars to freight houses for reclassification and distribution. No one, I suppose, would question that it is the right and duty of the railroads to acquire trucks and use them over highways and streets if this will enable them to render more economical and efficient service. If a railway may properly use motor trucks at one end of its lines, can there be any valid reason why it should not be allowed to own and operate boats from the other end of its lines if this will enable it to render more economical and efficient service? Nevertheless, as you know, while there are no legislative restrictions upon the ownership and use of motor trucks by railways, there are legislative restrictions upon their ownership and use of water carriers.

The main thing I have sought to emphasize has been the necessity for the development of a comprehensive and constructive transportation policy which will include highways, railways and inland waterways, and which will result in such co-ordination of all these means of transportation as will cause the commerce of the entire nation to be handled with the utmost efficiency and economy. We have entered a new epoch in our country's history—one in which the greatest efficiency in production will be necessary to enable us to provide, by our domestic industry and our domestic and foreign commerce, the necessities, comforts and luxuries needed for the welfare of our people. Transportation is one of the most important factors in industry and commerce. Therefore, upon the adequacy, efficiency and economy of our transportation service will largely depend the future welfare of our people. I know that many persons, including many advocates of the development of inland waterways, are disposed to regard with suspicion and questionings the policy of the railroads and any suggestions concerning a national transportation policy which may come from a railroad source. Undoubtedly, there have been reasons for this. I am not contending that the policy pursued by the railroads in relation to waterways or many other matters always has been right. I admit there have been abuses in their management, and that some of these have arisen in their relations with the water carriers. I also believe, however, and think you will agree with me, that many millions of dollars have been wasted in efforts to promote navigation on some of our inland waterways which would not have been wasted if a constructive policy in dealing with this important question of transportation had been pursued; and what I am now advocating is the adoption of a policy of developing and using the waterways which will recognize the fundamental principle that traffic should be permitted to move by that route, whether highway, rail or water, which is in fact the most efficient

Build Only Where Needed.

In this connection, reference should be made to a provision of the Transportation Act of 1920, which applies only to railways, but which is predicated on a principle which seems equally applicable to waterways. The Transportation Act provides that no railway shall in future construct any new line of railroad, or extend any old line, without first obtaining from the Interstate Commerce Commission a certificate that the present or future convenience and necessity of the public require, or will require, the construction and operation of the new or extended line. The purpose of this provision is to prevent increase of railway facilities when and where the means of transportation already provided are sufficient, and when and where, therefore, increase of them would impose an unnecessary burden upon the public. Doubtless in the administration of this provision the Commission would refuse authority to construct a railway line paralleling a waterway, if the waterway already was able to render all the transportation service public necessity and convenience required. From the standpoint of the economic welfare of the public, unnecessary duplication of transportation service by rail lines is no more undesirable than unnecessary duplication of service by water and rail lines. If, as Congress has decided, the Interstate Commerce Commission is the best authority to determine where additional railway lines are, or are not, needed, it seems to follow that it would be the best authority to determine where additional water transportation service was or was not needed. I raise for your consideration, therefore, the question whether the future development of transportation service by water as well as by rail ought not to be placed under the general supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission by so amending the Transportation Act as to provide that before any waterway is constructed, imporved or extended, a certificate must be obtained from the Commission to the effect that the public convenience and necessity require its con

Speaking for the railroad system I represent, we are ready to co-operate with the waterways in every legitimate and useful way. I am not prepared to say we will turn traffic over to them which we can handle, and which we believe we can handle better than they can, but to the extent that the patrons of our railroad desire us to work in co-operation with the waterways I am prepared to say that we will participate in every reasonable arrangement that may be suggested for the establishment of through rates and through routes by rail and water, and for the transfer of freight between the rail and the water carriers. The Transportation Act, as I have already indicated, permits railway officers to take a somewhat more detached view of the general transportation, problem than they could in the past, and, as public spirited citizens, the owners and officers of the railways consider it their duty to cooperate in future with all who are striving to promote a general transportation policy which will further the best interests of all the people and all sections of the country.

VIIICUSU Railway Terminal Plan

The Chicago Railway Terminal Commission was organized under the authority of the City Council in 1914 with the same personnel that had acted in an advisory capacity for the City Council in the prepa-ration of the ordinance for the West Side Union Passenger Station.

The resolution creating the Commission states that its duties "shall be to make a comprehensive, adequate and expert study of the passenger and freight railway terminal situation and problems, present and future, in the City of Chicago and to advise the City Council or its Committees on any matters connected with or relative to railway terminals, and to der reports to the City Council from time to time of the results of

In 1915 the Chicago Railway Terminal Commission after a com-prehensive study of the railway terminal problems in Chicago, in its general aspect, and an extended investigation of the terminal problems in some of the principal cities of the United States and Europe, submitted a preliminary report, setting forth the general principles underlying the solution of raidway terminal problems, and the application of these principles in a general way to the situation at Chicago.

This report has had a wide circulation and is generally recognized at the present time as expressing the best thought on the problems

Progress in the solution of the problems at Chicago was very much delayed on account of the War. However, the Commission was instrumental in having applied during the period of Government control of the railroads a unified operation of railway terminals. On account of the exigencies of the situation, the full benefits of unified operation were not possible, but it was demonstrated that fundamentally the principle was correct.

The Railway Terminal Commission has acted in an advisory capacity on a number of important terminal matters considered by the City Council during the past eight years, and in each case the effort was made to secure action that would be in line with the ultimate solution of the terminal problem.

After several years of very intensive work, it succeeded in working out the problems incident to the Lake Front Development and drew the ordinance which was afterwards adopted by the City Council, providing for the construction by the Illinois Central Railroad Company of a new passenger station fronting on Roosevelt road, and construction by the South Park Commissioners of a parkway with boulevards, lagoons, bathing beaches, and other park facilities on the Lake Front, extending from Grant Park to Jackson Park.

This ordinance provides for the electrification of the train service on the Illinois Central Railroad in progressive steps, and marks the first time in history where an electrification program was adopted primarily for the elimination of smoke, and the other objectionable fea-

The expenditures under this ordinance by the Illinois Central Rail-road and by the Park Commissioners are estimated at about $140,000,-000.00, and the completion of the improvements provided for in the ordinance will be one of the greatest achievements in the history of

The Railway Terminal Commission has gone on record as favoring the three station plan for the passenger terminals of Chicago. That is, on the west side the Northwestern Station and the Union Station now under construction, and on the south side the Illinois Central Lake Front Station.

n March of this year the chairman of the Commission, Mr. John P. Wallace, submitted to the City Council a comprehensive report covering the solution of the railway terminal problem as affecting the district immediately south of the Loop.

It is shown in this report that it would be highly desirable if the present three passenger stations between State Street and the River could be eliminated and the traffic now using these stations diverted to the Lake Front Station.

From the railroad standpoint such a change would result in a reduction of operating expenses and the elimination of a large amount of duplicate capital investment. From the public standpoint, it would result in the passenger traffic being concentrated at one station convenient of access from all parts of the City, and would make possible the revamping of the freight facilities in a way that would result in a great public benefit. In connection with the revamping of the freight facilities would be involved the straightening of the Chicago River.

It is shown in this report that with the elimination of the existing passenger stations between State Street and the River, and the straightpassenger stations between State Street and the River, and the straightening of the Chicago River between Polk Street and Sixteenth Street, it would be possible to provide freight facilities of double the capacity of the existing facilities, and confine the railroad occupation to the territory west of Clark Street, south of Roosevelt Road, and west of Wells Street north of Roosevelt Road. This would mean that all of the property now being used by the railroads between Clark Street and State Street, and between Clark Street and Wells Street, north of Roosevelt Road, could be released by the railroads and turned over for commercial purposes.

In addition it was shown that by the adoption of a proper plan three additional streets between Clark Street and the River, leading into the Loop District from the south, could be opened up, and that with the commercial development of the property between Clark Street and State Street, Dearborn Street could also be opened as a continuous thoroughfare.

It was also shown in this report that the property occupied by the railroads could be covered over with a commercial development which would be a source of great revenue to the railroads, and remove all of the objectionable features of railroad occupation.

If such a plan were worked out, the "iron band" preventing the expansion of the business district southward would be removed.

To all intent and purposes the railroad occupation, with its de-preciating effect on surrounding property, would disappear—State Street could be developed as it should be, as a great commercial artery extending southward. The value of real estate south of State Street would be greatly enhanced, and the entire territory changed into a commercial development of the very first class.

It is shown in the report referred to that from the sale of unnecessary property the railroad would obtain—in excess of the amount necessary to straighten the River, open up new streets, construct the necessary viaducts and railroad freight houses—an amount estimated conservatively at $40,000,000.00, and in addition the railroads would have available air rights—the rental on which would pay the interest on the cost of all of the facilities used by the railroads, including the value of the real estate. value of the real estate.

The bringing to a realization this great plan is the work now confronting the Chicago Railway Terminal Commission.

PLAN 12 STORY OFFICE BUILDING FOR BROADWAY

BY AL CHASE.

shaped office building may be erected at the intersection of Clifton, Broadway and Leland as the result of Henry Bloomfield leasing the land at 4725-A. Bloomhed leasing the land at 4725-49 Broadway for ninety-nine years from Andrew F. Schindler, at an aver-age annual rental of $25,399. The plot fronts 217 feet on Broadway and 218 feet on Clifton avenue, coming to a point in Leland avenue, while the north line is 110 feet. The land is im-proved with a two story mercantile $75,000.

The lease is dated July 1 and calls for a Ark Gas rental of $21,500 for the first year; $22,500 for the second; $23,500 for the third;

The lease is dated July 1 and calls for a rental of $21,500 for the first year; $22,500 for the second; $23,500 for the third; $24,500 for the fourth, and $25,500 annually for the balance of the term, nine ty-five years. Capitalizing the rental on a 5 per cent basis is equivalent to a teasing value of $507,980 for the land, or $46 a square foot.

Mr. Bloomfield is contemplating erecting a twelve story store and office building covering the entire plot as soon as conditions permit, which he believes will be not later than 1923. The property is directly south of the proposed twelve story bank and office building which the Sheridan Trust & Savings bank is planning to erect at the southeast corner of Broadway and Lawrence. ning to erect at the southeast corner of Broadway and Lawrence.

Announcing the New 1921 Edition of

MOODY'S INDUSTRIAL RATING BOOK

-One volume covering the entire field of Industrial investments. Contains full informa tion about corporations—descriptions of properties-officers and directors-analyses and comparative exhibits of statements and reports -descriptions of securities-ten year price range and definite investment ratings of all stocks and bonds.

-Combines the features of a corporation manual with those of an analysis and security rating book. Performs the same function in respect to securities as the commercial reference books do in credit matters-but goes farther—presenting full information regarding companies and showing the exhibit upon which the ratings are based.

Moody's Rating Books are the only publication with which John Moody has any connection and in which Mr. Moody's Investment Ratings appear.

Price: $20 delivered, covering all industrial securities, containing 1,800 pages. The set of four volumes — Industrials, Public Utilities, Railroads and Government and Municipal Securities—is priced at $80, or the books can be purchased separately at

The stock market made no visible response to the day's movement.

TN 1920, California alone produced $17,398,200 of gold. Its gold I mines, considered among the best on the Western continent, produce only a small percentage of all the gold mined in the world. Add to this volume the billions of dollars' worth of other metals mined annually-silver, copper, iron, lead, zinc, etc., etc.-and you may readily understand why mining is one of the greatest industries in the world today.

For more than forty years KILBOURNE & JACOBS Mining equipment—Dump Cars, Wheelbarrows, Trucks and Trailers have helped to standardize operations in this great industry not only in the United States but in fifty-one foreign countries throughout the world. The increasing demand for their products indicates that K. & J. equipment will be used in larger quantities

This is one reason why THE KILBOURNE & JACOBS MANU-FACTURING COMPANY has shown average net profits of more than $200,000 annually for the past seventeen years, while for the past five years their average net profits were more than $328,000 — or MORE THAN FOUR AND ONE-HALF TIMES the maximum interest requirements on their First Mortgage 8% Serial Gold Bonds.

The Path of Progress

THAT HAS LED TO THE SUCCESS OF

Thompson? PURE FOOD RESTAURANTS QUALITY GROCERY STORES

rant business with one restaurant-and with one big idea. That idea was to serve economically and satisfactorily the best and purest food obtainable in the cleanest and most appetizing way, so that a patron would keep coming and bring his friends. Today Mr. Thompson is president of the John R. Thompson Co.—an $8,000,000 corporation—operating over 100 Pure Food Restaurants in America's leading cities. The ever-increasing patronage and number of these restaurants shows that the big idea was both popular and profitable.

In addition to his restaurants, a chain of Thompson's Quality Grocery Stores has now been established in Chicago. They bid fair to grow to the same magnitude in the grocery field. Guaranteed, quality groceries—at low prices—are bound to be in large demand.

Among the two and one-half million visitors Chicago is prepared to entertain during the Pageant of Progress there will be many who attended the Chicago World's Fair. Among these there will surely be some who will recall having satisfactorily lunched at Thompson's,

Many of these visitors were from farms and small towns. The fact that the food at Thompson's was the best obtainable did not impress them at first, because these people were accustomed to the best meals at home. These folks today, as well as Chicago's own residents, have learned to look for the Thompson Pure Food Sign. The sight of it is as welcome as an old friend. It means pure food at a moderate price.

No matter where you happen to be you will always find a Thompson Pure Food Restaurant handy. It is the best place to get the best food in town, quickly and economically. That's a mighty good thing to remember when you're in Chicago during the Pageant of Progress. You don't have to eat in an unknown restaurant. You can have good "home food" and you know that the prices will be reasonable.

Look for the Thompson Pure Food Sign
